CIVIC GROUP OF 100 TO BE NAMED SOON

Dr. Carl W. Sawyer Asks for Nominations Not Later Than Thursday.

WORK PARTLY FINISHED

Broad View of City's Problems Needed by Members, Dr Sawyer Says.

Nominating committees representing Marionites in the selection of 60 members of the civic council of 100 persons to be named under the civic betterment plan evolved in Dr Sawyer's boost Marion movement had only partially finished their task today after a meeting at White Oaks farm last night.

Every Marionite with the exception of members of the original civic committee of 32 who automatically become members of the council was a candidate for nomination when the committees began work. The committees have been asked by Dr Sawyer to complete their task not later than Thursday.

19 at Meeting

Thirteen of the 18 members of the nominating committees attended the meeting last night. They were Mrs W N Harder and Mrs Kate Parish representing the clubs and organizations R F Fletcher representing the merchants C C Fisher and Dr J W McMurray representing the professional group Don Howard Clarence Brown and L K Warner representing the industrial group Supt George A Bowman and Miss Mary Helphrey representing the governmental group and William Pohler J E Grundy and R K Ruppart representing the workers

Furnished with instructions and the names of Marion residents in each of the six divisions represented, they were told to name 10 persons from each of the six groups

Dr Sawyer asked the nominating committees to judge their nominees on a basis of civic ability and intention

Must See Problems

"To be a real member of the council a person must be able to look at all problems from the viewpoint of the entire citizenry of Marion and not simply his own or his group viewpoint," Dr Sawyer said.

The meeting last night enabled the committees to name not more than 25 persons from whom their 10 representatives will be chosen If each group has voted on its representatives by Thursday another meeting of the same committees will be called for next Monday night to tabulate and verify names of the 60 nominees

The 60 chosen in this manner combined with the original committee of 32 will eventually choose eight other persons rounding out the council of 100

Hails Franco-German Commission as First Step To World Prosperity.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN Sept 29 — Premier Laval returned to France with Foreign Minister Briand today firmly of the opinion that the new Franco-German economic commission was the first step toward world collaboration to restore prosperity

The same precautions marked the departure of the guests as did their arrival with heavy squads of armed police hovering in the background to guard against demonstrations The streets leading from the hotel to the station were clogged with people shouting "vive la paix." Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius were on hand to wish them farewell.

"The commission will work in harmony with the universal efforts to combat the economic crisis," M. Laval said in a statement. Cooperation with all other nations will be sought wherever necessary.

"This action will be the first step to cooperation which has become the need of the hour and in which all are called to participate."

He made it clear that the plan was not directed against the interests of any other nation and that "the solution of problems put to the commission is to be one which be effected by the mutual relations of common profit."

Six bombs in all were fired within a few hours of each other last night resulting in the destruction of one home and a general panic in north Denver and two suburbs The first three did no damage

Fifty members of a church school club dashed terrified from the building The blast stopped the motion picture machine in the Oriental theater across the streets and hundreds of theater patrons rushed for exits

Mrs Mary Jackson who lives near the church told police she saw a stout man leave a car walk up an alley behind the church school and run out later a second before the explosion

A few minutes later a bomb blast rocked a neighborhood a few blocks distant shattering windows and knocking goods from store shelves for several blocks around

Probe Fourth Explosion

Police were investigating these explosions when a fourth blast wrecked and set fire to a house owned by Custer Rand in Barnum another suburb Rand who lives next door could not be found last night.

Party Leaders Would Drop Wet Plank from Platform in 1932

PROPOSALS BRING DEBATE

Senators Differ Widely on Possible Effects of Beer Legislation.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Sept 29—Beer and prohibition generally will be barred from both Democratic and Republican national conventions next year if Senator Watson of Indiana is correct as a prognosticator

And it will be stamped firmly from the Democratic platform if his party harkens to the plea of Senator McKellar of Tennessee

Both yesterday added their voices to the steady drip drip of liquor talk that promises to spill over into coming congressional sessions and the 1932 elections

The Republican senate leader forecast that both conventions would abandon any attempt to commit their parties on the prohibition issue

Sees Democratic Win

Senator McKellar in an address at Rogersville Tenn said nothing but a wet plank could prevent a Democratic victory in 1932 He appealed for a campaign based on economic issues and the tariff

Meanwhile on capitol hill the debate brought cleavage between two administration stalwarts

A proposal by Senator Bingham of Connecticut to sponsor a new bill for four per cent beer was met by a challenge from Senator Capper of Kansas doubting that the beverage would act as a tonic for economic ailments

Bingham's insistence that congress vote on his bill was supported by Representative Schneider of Wisconsin also a Republican who contended every member of congress should be compelled to let the country know his stand on the question

A reduction in consumption of dairy products soft drinks ice cream candy and other confections was foreseen by Senator Capper if four per cent beer were legalized

Meanwhile the organized prohibition and anti prohibition was reported asking members of congress their views upon submission of the prohibition question to state conventions as proposed by the American Legion a powerful offensive was planned by the drys.

Admitting we've lost some ground" and that "recent developments have awakened us" Edwin C Dinwiddie announced the national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment would continue to focus its drive on the national political conventions.

Head of the national temperance bureau, he was designated to seek registry of a majority of the American Legion "silent voters, lawyers and doctors on the side of prohibition.

MISSOURI VOTE IN SPOTLIGHT

Outcome of Election Today Indicates Party Trend in Lower House.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — Missouri was the crystal ball into which Republican and Democratic chieftains looked today for an indication of which party will control the next house of congress.

As ballots were cast in the seventh district of that state for a successor to the late Representative Samuel C Major, a Democrat, both national congressional committees awaited the outcome avidly. It was expected to indicate the trend of six other special elections to fill house vacancies, all of which will have been held by the night of Nov. 3.

At present the Republicans have 216 seats, the Democrats 213 and the Farmer-Labor party one. The last November elections gave the Republicans 218; the Democrats 216 and the Farmer-Labor 1.

Democrats hope to retain the seventh Missouri seat regained by Major after two years of occupancy by John W. Palmer, Republican, and to capture the first Ohio vacated by the death of Nicholas Longworth, Republican nominee for speaker for his fourth term.

Although they have but little hope of taking the remaining five, they would tie the seats 217 to 217, if the first Ohio fell to the Democratic fold. With the assistance of Kvale, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, they could organize the house because it takes only a majority of one to do it. Kvale, however, has not indicated with which party he will vote

The Democrats are reported unanimous for Representative Garner of Texas, their leader for the past two years, as nominee for speaker. Thus, they can present a united front to the Republicans as organization.

The Republicans, on the other hand, must caucus again to select a successor to Longworth. A number of their ranking members have been suggested, although Representative Tilson of Connecticut, floor leader for six years, and Representative Snell, chairman of the rules committee for the same period, have been pushed forward by different factions as outstanding candidates.

REQUEST RULING ON PAYMENT OF BILL

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 29 — Attorney General Bettman is to be asked by the state board of control whether the state or county boards of election should pay the bill for advertising the $7,500,000 welfare bond issue which is to be on the November ballot.

Last week the board granted $24,000 for that purpose, provided the advertising could not be legally paid for out of some other fund. Secretary of State Brown sent out the advertising, telling the publishers to look to the state for their money.

Publicity measures to assure the success of the Forget-Me-Not drive of Marion Chapter No. 22, Disabled American War Veterans, including a public booster meeting Oct. 6, were discussed at a meeting of a committee last night. The drive will be made Saturday, Oct. 10

Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr. and Mayor L. Don Jones are among the local men who will address the booster meeting, to be held in Red Men hall at 8 p. m. for the public.

D. E. Farling, national liaison officer of the D. A. V., will be at the booster meeting and will discuss the problems of the organization and of the benefits which it has brought to its members and to families of deceased members.

Workers, captains of the day and officers of the chapter will welcome the public to the meeting.

The purpose of the annual Forget-Me-Not campaign is to raise funds for the support of a national system of rehabilitation officers to act as free, skilled assistants for disabled men, their mothers, fathers, wives and children, and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans Some idea of the enormity of the problem of preparation and presentation of claims before the U. S. veterans administration may be gauged from the fact that regulations governing this bureau cover more than 7,000 pages.

A machine gun "nest" will be built on the courthouse esplanade, which will be the center from which all workers will go out on the day of the campaign. Clayton R. Hartley and Ivan E. Wittlinger are a committee in charge of the "nest."

A new form of campaign will be put on this year, with "silent solicitors." At vantage points in the far corners of the city where workers will be unable to go, the blue forget-me-nots will be placed in a vase, with a money container, and a placard, announcing the drive and its cause. R. M. Tumbleson and J. M. Edington will be in charge of the "silent solicitors."

Marion theaters are cooperating with the disabled veterans to put over the drive. Next week each of the theaters will run a "Forget-Me-Not" slide for the veterans, free of charge. Placards will be printed and placed throughout the city. Mr. Tumbleson, Mr. Hartley and Mr. Edington are in charge of the movie slides and placards.

The Forget-Me-Not committee, which met with Ivan E. Wittlinger of 1166 Cheney avenue, is headed by Rev. B E Hillman of Full Gospel Assembly church. Members of the committee include Fred F. Miller, commander of the chapter, E W. Koeppen, Dr. James W. McMurray, Mr Edington, Mr. Hartley, Mr. Tumbleson and Mr Wittlinger.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ENDS 12TH SESSION

United States Thanked for Interest in Efforts To Assure Peace.

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Sept 29—The twelfth assembly of the League of Nations adjourned this afternoon after having set in motion a plan for an armaments truce beginning Nov. 1. The league council however, remained in session to consider the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria.

The closing session was marked by an exchange of appeals that the powers use every means to make next February's disarmament conference a success, and the members congratulated themselves over the collaboration of the United States with the league's work at this session, expressing gratitude to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for his interest in the league's work for peace.

The move for an armaments truce, although it was less direct and concrete than some of the delegates had desired, was characterized as a valuable contribution to the success of the meeting next February.

Lord Cecil, for England, asserted that this session, which opened "with an expectation of barrenness, has been one of our most fruitful meetings" Despite outside criticism, he said, the session showed the league at its best.

Representatives of several of the other nations echoed his sentiments.

Former Bank Cashier Seeks To Have Cleveland Judge's Decision Reversed.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29—Appeal of Mary Volk, former cashier of the Citizens' National bank at Galion O., from the decision dismissing her $200,000 damage suit against directors of the defunct institution, was filed in federal district court here today.

Attorneys for the former cashier filed the appeal brief, taking the case to the federal court of appeals at Cincinnati. The appeal brief averred the decision dismissing the cashier's original petition was not based upon the law and facts in the case.

Judge Samuel H. West dismissed Miss Volk's suit upon application of A. E Evensen, federal receiver for the bank, and made Evensen's cross bill to the cashier's original action, the only pending case before the court. The cross bill of the receiver contains the same allegations as the original petition except that it added three other former directors of the bank as defendants

SELL PHILCO, RCA-VICTOR

Store Has Been Among Leaders in Music Line for 60 Years.

The Henry Ackerman Piano Co. of 148 south Main street, which was founded over 60 years ago, has just announced the lines of radio which it will represent during the coming radio season. This store, which was established by Henry Ackerman Sr. in 1869, has always carried the best of musical instruments and has striven to take care of the musical wants of Marion; in other words it has been the musical center of this city for years. When the radio was introduced for home use, this same store became pioneers in the selling of radio sets in Marion. So that this firm is now one of the oldest radio dealers in the city of Marion.

As might be expected the Ackerman Co. has this season secured the local agency for two of the leading makes of radio. It is with pleasure that the firm announces its appointed as dealer for the Philco and RCA-Victor lines of radios. In their radio department, which is located on the second floor of the store, a full line of the new 1932 models will be shown. It has been predicted by radio experts that the two lines mentioned above will be the outstanding radios for 1932. Anyone considering purchasing a new radio this season should not fail to see and hear these radios at the Ackerman store, before buying.

To those already owning a radio, Ackermans wish to announce that they maintain a service department, which is fully equipped to repair any make of radio. A technician who thoroughly understands radio is employed to service any set that might not be operating satisfactorily. This service department is also important for one, who is contemplating purchasing a radio, to consider. If you buy a radio of Ackerman's their service man is available at any time, should your set require attention.

Standard makes of radio tubes, including Cunningham and Radiotron, are carried in stock at all times; and remember Ackerman's will be glad to test your tubes free. Simply phone 2121 and their service man will be glad to come to your home and test the tubes in the set. If you prefer, bring your tubes to the store at 148 south Main street for a free test. Your tubes might be weak or need replacement. It is very important that the tubes function properly in any set.

As mentioned earlier in this article, the Henry Ackerman Piano Co. maintains a complete music store. A large stock of pianos, including grands, uprights and players, are shown on the second floor, the same floor the radio department is on. This store is in a position to rent pianos to homes for a period of time. On the first floor is shown a large stock of band and orchestra instruments, with supplies of all kinds for all musical instruments. Victor, Brunswick and Columbia records are carried in stock. A complete line of sheet music, including popular, standard and classical numbers are always carried in stock. Teaching methods and material for all instruments are also available. A repair service for all kinds of musical instruments, which is in charge of an expert repairman, is another department of the store. A tuner is employed to take care of any piano tuning and repairing orders received. In fact, this is a complete music store

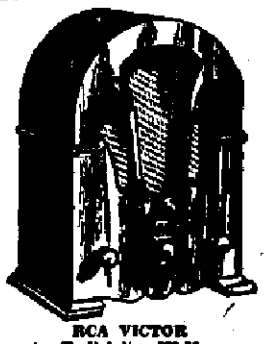
List Philco, RCA-Victor Advantages

LARGEST SELLING RADIO IN THE WORLD

More people, more by scores of thousands, choose Philco in preference to any other radio. This is one of the radio lines sold in Marion by the Henry Ackerman Piano Co. Month after month Philco has been the choice of the vast majority, this demand for Philco at times soaring to thrice that of any other receiver. The matchless quality of Philco tone, Philco performance, the rich beauty of Philco furniture, the price, always so surprisingly low, those are the reasons why Philco is conceded to be the unquestioned leader of the radio industry.

PERFORMANCE IS PROOF

This year RCA-Victor presents a line of radios that is not only better, more complete, and more versatile than that of any other manufacturer but one that is easily and convincingly demonstrated so. The Henry Ackerman Piano Co. of 148 south Main street, local dealers for the new 1932 RCA-Victor line of radios asks you to prove this statement for yourself. The new RCA-Victor line covers the entire range of price, and equipped with every advance feature that could be incorporated practically into it.



RCA VICTOR
Radiolette—$37.50

THE NEW PHILCO LINE

Every Philco in the new 7, 9 and 11 tube line is now a balanced superheterodyne. Only in a balanced superheterodyne can you get the sharp selectivity to separate, at all points on the dial, the 200 broadcasting stations which in any other type radio tend to interfere with each other.

All Philcos have the station recording dial, with glowing arrow station finder. How hard it is, with the ordinary tuning system, to remember where all your favorite stations are. With Philco, you simply tune each station accurately once, write the call letters under the glowing arrow; thereafter simply turn to same position and quickly and easily get the station again.

THE NEW RCA-VICTOR LINE

The first model in the new line is the Radiolette, model R-5, which is a two-tuned circuit R. F. table type receiver, encased in a walnut Cathedral cabinet. By virtue of being equipped with the phenomenal new Pentobe Radiotron, it uses only four tubes. It also features a new small-type of electro-dynamic loudspeaker of unusual efficiency. It is built deliberately to give you the most you can buy for $37.50. It is just the thing for the den, the office, the nursery.

Then comes the Supertile, model R-7. This is a full-power, full-tone screen grid superheterodyne, equipped with eight tubes, including the new, sensational Super-Control Radiotron. It is unbelievably sensitive, very selective and tonally superior to anything except a larger RCA Victor superheterodyne. Famous corrugated cone, eight-inch dynamic speaker, developed and improved by RCA Victor. A single tuning dial calibrated in kilocycles, and in numerals from 0 to 100. A luxurious, compact cabinet, built with RCA Victor skill and care. Elaborately tested at the factory before shipment and backed by the famous RCA-Victor guarantee. This set sells for $89.50, complete with tubes.

The next model in the Console, R-19. The specifications of this model are the same as the R-7, described above, except that it is housed in an unusually beautiful 18th century English cabinet, 40 inches high and 22 inches wide. The price of this model is $89.50, complete with tubes.

The model R-11 is next in the line. It is a nine-tube superheterodyne console radio. It has automatic volume control, the most modern development in radio. It is equipped with the new Pentobe Radiotron tube, also with the new Super-Control Radiotron. It is provided with the RCA Victor Micro Tone Control. The chassis is floated on rubber, so that it cannot touch the cabinet and deaden the tone, nor set up inner vibrations that mar your radio enjoyment. The price of this set is $119 complete.

225 Horses at Track for County Fair Racing Events

PROGRAM PROMISES TO BE ONE OF FINEST IN MARION HISTORY

Entry List Is Largest Ever Known for Fair Events; Fast Time Likely.

If the number of horses quartered at the track are any indication of what is to come, the Marion county fair stewards will present one of the classiest racing cards this year that has ever been offered in connection with one of the county fairs here. The races will start on Wednesday and continue three days through Friday.

Racing secretary J. C. Luvisi announced last night that the principal problem confronting the management at present is the finding of stable room for all of the entries. A last minute flood of arrivals has jammed every available bit of stable room with 225 horses and more are expected before the time of the opening heat of the 2:20 trot Wednesday. This number includes some of the best horses in the country, many grand circuit performers. It is the largest number of horses here for fair racing in the history of the events.

Although the programs call for three races on Wednesday, four on Thursday and three on Friday, patrons of the events are certain to see more racing than this, due to the unusually large number of entries. Many events will be split into two divisions. The first race of the program, the 2:20 trot, has 34 entries declared in, forcing a splitting of the field. Several other events also have too many entries for one division.

Every local owner of race horses is reported represented at the races with one or more horses. Among those are Dr. N. Siffrit, L. L. Aller, Harry Craig, J. M. Lett and Dyson. Plaxico, one of the finest drivers in the state, will pilot all of L. L. Aller's horses.

The barrier system of starting the horses, used for the first time here last summer in Little Grand circuit races, will not be used in the fair events. The scoring system will be in vogue. The track is reported in excellent condition for the events.

C. D. Mittenbuehler's two-year-old, Trixie Chan, will be raced against time as a feature of the first day's events Wednesday.

Mittenbuehler has offered to present a free dinner to the driver and owner of both the three-year-old pace on Wednesday afternoon and the three-year old trot on Friday.

The races are called for 12:30 p. m. each day.

CARD DEFENSE NOT RATED EQUAL TO A'S

Gould Figures Champs Stronger as a Team in Fielding and Batting Prowess.

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—Measured by the calibre of pitching on the yardstick of fielding skill and experience, the world's champion Athletics posses a margin of superiority over the Cardinals in defensive strength for the baseball championship battle.

The National league champions have a faster infield, featuring the Frisch-Gelbert combination around second base. The A's otherwise, have an edge on the mound, behind the bat and in the outfield, especially if the sensational bullhawk, Mule Haas, is back in top form.

Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw, the twin aces upon whom the hopes of another quick American league victory are based, always have had the benefit of sterling support from their teammates. Inspiration works both ways when either of these fast-ball flingers is on the mound.

Have To See 'Em

It's an old baseball axiom that "you can't hit what you can't see" and at times last October, it appeared some of the Cardinal batsmen were not properly visualizing the smoke of Grove and Earnshaw, let alone penetrating it with any substantial success. Watberg and Hoyt will form the second line of pitching defense for the A's.

The Cardinal twirling defense will be distinctly a gamble, if Gabby Street is forced to rely on Paul Derringer and Bill Hallahan, instead of Burleigh Grimes and Jesse Haines, veterans of the Red Bird flock. Derringer is a newcomer to series fire. With Hallahan, it's either a shutout or a knockout. He blanked the A's the first time he faced them last year and was routed in two innings the next time.

The A's infield has never been the club's strongest point. Foxx, for instance, does not compare with Bottomley as a defensive worker, although Jimmy is steady. Bishop is not so spectacular as Frisch, one of the great defensive second basemen of all time. Boley, an old reliable, cannot cover the ground, nor has he the arm that Gelbert owns. The Mack substitute, Williams, is more on Gelbert's style. Dykes is about on a par with either Adams or High at third.

A's Outfield Better

On the outer patrol, the A's have two of the finest fly-catchers in Al Simmons and Mule Haas. Both cover acres of ground and have great arms. Haley, in left, and either Pepper Martin or Ornatti in center, for the Cardinals, do not quite measure up to the exceptional standard of their rival. Watkins or Roettger, in right field for the National leaguers, lack the experience of the veteran Bing Miller.

Mickey Cochrane may have one or two mechanical faults behind the bat. His arm is good, though not the best in the back-stopping business, but the great Mack receiver's all around ability surpasses that of the clever Jimmy Wilson, No. 1 catcher for the Cards. Mickey's biggest advantage is at bat. He is one of the greatest "money players" in baseball and has starred in each of the last two world series.

Connie Mack's famous scorecard must be ranked as a defensive weapon. The 68-year-old manager has studied the batting habits of every Cardinal, personally or through his trusted agents, and will wave his men into position accordingly. If any cracks or breaks develop in the champion's defense, Mack has a flock of reserves primed to gallop into action.

Haines Only Cardinal Not Able To Play in Series

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29—Except for pitcher Jess Haines, who probably will see no action because of an army injury, Manager Gabby Street expects the St. Louis Cardinals to be at their full strength for the world series.

Gabby said today he believes both John (Pepper) Martin, center-fielder, and "Sparky" Adams, third baseman, will be ready for action in the first game against the Philadelphia Athletics here Thursday.

Martin who suffered a wrenched left knee at Cincinnati Sunday, worked out with his teammates yesterday, handling himself without favoring the injured knee. Adams, who sprained an ankle Sept. 20, also worked out.

Haines, Street said, probably will not pitch during the series. The big right-hander pulled a muscle three weeks ago and has not pitched since. Until he was injured, Haines was regarded as the probable Cardinal starting pitcher in the first game of the series. The veteran, in three world series, has won three games while losing only one.

With Haines out of consideration, it was regarded as likely today that Street would send Paul Derringer, giant right-hander, against the Athletics in the opening game. Street, however, said he would not announce the opening game pitcher until Wednesday. "Wild Bill" Hallahan was considered the logical choice for the second game.

Street ordered another workout for this afternoon, after the players return to Sportsman's park from a "victory parade" through the downtown streets. They will be joined in a polishing up maneuvers by Bill Walker, left-hander of the Giants, who has volunteered his services.

The Athletics apparently will not hold a workout at Sportsman's park before the series. They are, of course, familiar with the field, as they play their American league games there against the Browns, and, in addition, had world series experience last October.

Baseball leaders writers and fans started arriving in large numbers today. President John A. Heydler of the National league was expected this afternoon. Baseball Commissioner Landis and William Harridge are expected tonight or tomorrow.

SPORTS

BY ROB KILPATRICK

Now that everyone has survived the spasm of enthusiasm and returned to a reasonable degree of sanity following Harding's hoped-for but unexpected brilliant showing against Columbus South last Saturday night, it might be well to proceed with a slight discourse on what possibilities are in store for the Presidents the rest of the season. If this little sermon (oh my yes, that's what's coming) had of been dished out before this wave of uncontrollable enthusiasm had passed off, it is quite probable I'd have been drawn and quartered for uttering such fearful heresies as this, I may be anyway. It wouldn't be at all surprising.

Despite Harding's excellent showing against the Bulldogs which netted them a 6-6 tie, (a moral victory if you choose, I'm not particular), there are any number of glaring faults which must be remedied if Harding is to cut a figure of any size in the coming N. C. O. league struggle. Some of the errors made in the first game of the year were undoubtedly the result of inexperience, others could not be so easily excused. Regardless of the cause, a continuance of the same misplays would be decidedly costly to the Presidents.

Harding appears to have the makings of a first class football team this fall. Only the makings however. There is room for a world of improvement. The players themselves will be the first to admit this fact. And right there ladies and gentlemen, lies the basis for the optimism which may well prevail concerning Harding's team.

As long as the team is capable of recognizing its weaknesses and anxious to strive for their correction, Harding has a chance to go places and do things in a creditable style. The Presidents got started on the right path. There is reason to believe they'll stay there. A fair share of the breaks, combined with the improvement which they are almost certain to show, should bring Harding through the season with a majority of the games in the victory column.

Station Looted.

BUCYRUS, Sept. 29—Practically the entire stock of candies and automobile accessories were stolen from the Etsinger filling station on the Galion road, three miles east of Bucyrus Saturday night when burglars broke into the establishment. The filling station has been in operation only a few weeks, under the management of Roy Etsinger.

DICK HANLEY DRIVES PURPLE FOR BATTLE WITH CORNHUSKERS

Wildcats Change Tactics as Nebraska Eleven Looms as Tough Opponent.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, has changed his mind about taking Nebraska "in stride" to point for Notre Dame, and the Wildcats are busy sharpening their claws for the Cornhuskers.

Hanley, who does not believe in opening schedules with minor opponents, figured Nebraska would give his eleven a real testing but planned nevertheless, to concentrate on preparations for the Notre Dame game October 10. But after he saw the scouting report compiled by Assistant Coach Maury Kent, of the Cornhuskers' victory over South Dakota, he decided drills for the Notre Dame contest would have to wait.

Hanley yesterday put his squad to work on defensive play.

Iowa with Pittsburgh's powerful Panthers as its opponent Saturday, found encouragement in the return of four linemen who have been on the hospital list. Coach Burt Ingwersen continued to juggle his forwards in an effort to steady the defense, but was not satisfied. His backs, however, continued to show improvement.

Hoosiers Work Hard

At Indiana they are working feverishly to develop as much of a defense as possible in the hope of slowing up Notre Dame Saturday. The Hoosiers need deserves for the line, and the backs have not looked good against forward passes, leaving Coach E. C Hayes with plenty of worry about. Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, who pronounced the play on Notre Dame's regulars against the reserves last Saturday as about as bad as any football he has seen, man and boy, is working the Irish strenuously.

Purdue will use two different squads in Saturday's doubleheader with Coe and Western Reserve and reserves are being worked hard in preparation for the opening tests. Illinois needs a dependable punter and the fullback job in Saturday's opener with St. Louis probably will go to the individual doing the best booting during the week. Michigan has the same problem and Coach Harry Kipke watched his kickers closely in a scrimmage yesterday.

Line Gets Attention

Minnesota's line got most of Coach Fritz Crisler's attention yesterday. The forwards blocked and tackled raggedly against the North Dakota Aggies and Ripon Saturday, partly offsetting some good work in the backfield. Wisconsin's line prospects picked up yesterday when Harvey Kranhold successfully got by a classroom examination. Kranhold probably will be a regular at guard.

Ohio State appears ready for Cincinnati Saturday and Coach Sam Willaman is set for his opening lineup. The Buckeyes displayed plenty of power in walloping the reserves, 74 to 0, Saturday, and a lot of time will be spent on defensive work this week. Chicago, with an open date Saturday, is working on offensive measures for the Michigan game October 10.

The Clemson football team this year will wear, for the first time, white jerseys. The shirts will carry orange and purple numerals.

Meet Heidelberg Team

Possibilities of the 1931 Ohio Wesleyan football team, which this season undertakes the toughest schedule in the school's history, are expected to be uncovered Saturday when the Battling Bishops meet Heidelberg, undefeated last year, in their first contest of the season at Delaware.

Herewith are shown five of the lettermen around whom Coach George Gauthier is building his team. Edgar Westfall, Dayton, is perhaps the best forward passer and punter developed at Ohio Wesleyan since the days of Eddie Bilckle. Howard Ginaven of Springfield fullback, excels in line plunging and in defensive play, while Roderick Campbell, Elmira, N. Y., halfback, is a good blocker. He can also carry the ball well.

Three Big 10 Teams Meet Tough Opponents Saturday

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—Football will take on an extremely serious aspect for three western conference elevens, Indiana, Northwestern and Iowa, this week, and the other members of the league, with the exception of Chicago, will engage in warm-up contests.

Indiana, victorious over Ohio university of Athens, O., by the margin of a point after touchdown last Saturday, will be the opening opponent of Notre Dame's 1931 offering. Northwestern, where coach Dick Hanley has decided it is best to learn the worst about his team as quickly as possible, will tackle Nebraska at Evanston, and Iowa will inaugurate the midwest intersectional season with a battle against Pittsburgh's Panthers, who crushed Miami, 61 to 0, Saturday at Iowa City.

Michigan, co-champion with Northwestern last season, will engage in one of those doubleheader affairs, meeting the central state teachers of Mt. Pleasant, Mich., and Michigan Normal of Ypsilanti Purdue, ranked as a good bet for the Big Ten title, also will work out on two minor teams, taking on Coe College and Western Reserve in the same afternoon.

Illinois, which has a batch of promising sophomores, will make its initial appearance against St. Louis university, and Ohio State will open its season with the University of Cincinnati at Columbus. Wisconsin's inaugural opponent will be Bradley college of Peoria, Ill.

Minnesota, which barely managed to subdue the North Dakota Aggies, 13 to 7, and wallop Ripon, 30 to 0, will meet Oklahoma A. & M., at Minneapolis, leaving Chicago as the only idle member.

Indiana managed to break Ohio university's winning string at 19 straight, but did not look impressive in so doing. Minnesota showed flashes of strength and should be ready to take its place as a dark-horse, when its conference season opens late next month.

Chicago had enough power to overcome Cornell of Mt. Vernon, Ia., 12 to 0, but the same lineup could not cope with Hillsdale, Mich., college and was defeated, 7 to 0.

SIX N. C. O. TEAMS IN FINAL START BEFORE LEAGUE SKED OPENS

Harding Meets Delaware in Saturday Setto Here To Open Home Season.

Intent on ironing out many of the glaring faults brought to light in previous encounters, coaches of all six North Central Ohio league football teams yesterday commenced a week of intensive drill for a final round of non-league engagements before the opening on Oct. 10 of the scramble for the championship of the circuit. Mansfield's Tygers are now possessors of the title, having held it for two straight seasons but all signs indicate that the Men of Murphy will be forced to hurdle a host of obstacles before winning the third consecutive crown.

Three games are down on the schedule books for Friday of this week, with another trio following on Saturday.

On Friday afternoon Coach "Rosie" Stark's Ashland Hilltoppers will entertain the New London High school team, the latter eleven being classed as somewhat of a push-over for the Ashlanders.

The Bucyrus Redmen, with a pair of victory scalps already dangling from their belts, will trek to Columbus Friday night to do battle with South High, which battled to a 6-6 tie with Harding last week. Bucyrus will be called upon to put forth everything it possesses if it is to win this game, for despite the Harding deadlock South has a classy aggregation. If the Bucktown boys can trounce

SELLING HOLDS SHARES DOWN

Prominent Utilities, Industrials Slide to New Lows on Big Board.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—Further flurries of selling kept the securities markets unsettled today.

In the share market, prominent industrials and several utilities recorded new lows for the bear market, but rails showed notable resistance to the declining tendency. Selling was active at times. Bonds were again under pressure, although declines were more moderate than yesterday's.

In stocks, New York Central managed to advance to 2¼ points at one time, but later lost its rise. A few specialties broke widely. Coca Cola tumbled 13 points, then recovered partially. Wrigley slumped more than 6 points. Miscellaneous issues losing 2 to 3 points, included U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, North American, Borden, Eastman, Procter & Gamble, Allied Chemical, Woolworth and others. General Motors and General Electric declined more than a point to new lows, and Kreuger and Toll lost as much, getting close to 5. International Match preferred dropped 4 points.

The market appeared to be still under the domination of uncertainties abroad. Steadiness of sterling exchange, and recovery in the Holland florin were encouraging but news that the Stockholm stock exchange would be closed until further orders, and that the principal industrial bank in Rheims, France, had closed its doors gave a measure of the widespread financial unsettlement in Europe.

The Paris bourse closed with a distinctly heavy tone, and the London market was partially paralyzed by the uncertainties over the possibility of an election and the apparent deadlock in the government over a protective tariff.

GRAIN PRICES TURN LOWER

Increased Pressure at Liverpool Affects Wheat Values Bearishly.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—Grain prices turned downward early today, influenced by Liverpool reports of increased pressure to sell Canadian wheat abroad and by cheaper Russian offerings. Further declines in Wall street securities were also a bearish factor. Opening ¼-¾ cent lower, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started at ⅝-¾ decline to ⅛ advance with new crop deliveries outdoing the season's low price record, but later kept near the initial range.

Russia was reported to have slashed her export wheat prices. Reports that the full effect of suspension of the gold standard had been witnessed were apparently ignored.

Corn price downturns resulted largely from favorable weather for field work, and from increased bookings of corn to arrive in Chicago. Besides, today's receipts here were liberal, 103 cars compared with 93 a week ago and 75 on the corresponding day last year. December corn, representing the new crop, fell at one stage to 35½ cents a bushel, more than a full cent drop from the opening quotations. Oats followed corn.

N.C.O. TEAMS PREPARE FOR LEAGUE OPENING

Harding Tackles Delaware in Second Start of 1931 Season.

south they will gain considerable attention as the race for the league title gets under way.

Columbus Aquinas will probably offer Mansfield a fairly stiff test Friday at the Mansfield stadium although the Tygers should come through with the second victory of the year. The Irish eleven of Columbus does not generally turn out teams quite on a par with other Capital city combinations but Irish are Irish and that means a tough fight from start to finish.

As far as local fans are concerned there is but one game Saturday, that between Harding and Delaware. Delaware returns to the Presidents schedule after a lapse of several years and is bringing a fairly strong outfit here, if press reports from the neighbor city are not misleading. This will be the first home game for Harding and will be played on Fairground field.

Other games Saturday will match Shelby with Willard on the Willard gridiron and Galion with Crestline on the latter's field and Shelby will be favored to take the measure of Willard although the latter may furnish some dogged opposition. Shelby held Norwalk to a scoreless tie last week but lost the services of Captain "Hlene" Miller in doing it, this accident not figuring to enhance the chances of the Whippets who have already been deprived of their principal ground gainer through the loss of Jim Miller at the start of the season.

Galion will be playing its first strength of the Orangemen remains pretty well shrouded in mystery. McClintock's men will undoubtedly take the measure of the Crestline eleven, which has already fallen prey to Bucyrus by a one-sided count. The only thing in doubt about this game is the size of the score.

Company Incorporates.

Papers of incorporation were issued by the secretary of state yesterday to the Union SecurItes Co of Marion, which is expected to open offices in the Citizens' Building & Loan Co. building soon to deal in government, state, county, municipal and school bonds. Incorporators are C. H. Allen, C. Z. Zachman and Gertrude I. Myers. The company is capitalized at $25,000.

Car Wrecked.

A sedan, the property of Elmer Van Meter of north of Marion, was towed to the Harry Haberman garage late yesterday afternoon from Galion where it was badly damaged in an automobile accident. No one was injured in the accident, it was reported.

CHIEF WARNS OF BOGUS INSPECTORS

Fire Department Head Says Parties Posing as Insurance Men Working Here.

Fire Chief T. J. McFarland today issued a warning to Marion residents against house-to-house canvassers claiming to represent insurance companies and instructing numerous persons to have furnaces or chimneys repaired to conform with insurance regulations.

There is no work of this kind done in residential districts by insurance companies unless the ideal agent does so, in which case he will show proper credentials Chief McFarland said. These men also ask to be allowed to inspect the heating system, thus gaining entry into the homes, he said.

Several reports were received yesterday at the fire department of activity of this kind, the chief said, and numerous cases have been reported in the last several months The state fire marshal and the city fire department are the only agencies having authority to order work of this kind done after proper inspection, the chief said

Chief McFarland requested all persons receiving unofficial inspectors to call the fire or police departments.

Meet Committee

Meeting a committee of five from the union in a long caucus session preceding the open meeting, council also assured the visitors that no outside agencies will administer city relief funds

Council took under consideration recommendations that a five-day week be established for city employes to relieve the unemployment situation, and that the city purchase as far as possible, all foods bought for relief of the needy at wholesale prices

In stating that no one but city relief authorities will distribute municipal relief funds councilmen made it plain that it is still willing to consider combining the city relief department with the Family Welfare society, a Community Fund agency Council has not yet taken a definite stand on the proposal to combine the relief agencies, and did not intend last night's action as an indication that the proposal is not favorably regarded, members of council said

To Be Given Work

Officials say that able bodied men will be given various jobs on streets and in parks and compensated with wages from city relief funds, under terms of an existing ordinance. This program will be worked out by C M Tobin, city poor relief commissioner, in cooperation with various city departments in which unskilled labor can be used.

The Central Labor union committee expressed its satisfaction over the action taken by council, following the caucus session. Those appearing before council were members of the legislative committee of the union, headed by C A Bolin. Other members present last night were Jesse Warrick, candidate of the labor party for mayor, J D. Cantwell, A. J. Owens and George Eyre.

"Eczema broke out in a small place near my elbow. It began itching and continued so for months, and the more I scratched the worse it itched. The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Sept. 30

AN interesting and eventful day may be presaged from the dominant reign of important planets While those in the employment of others may have anxious or disquieting moments, yet there may be openings for strategic moves or secret agreements. Change or removal is indicated, but with an unfortunate position of Jupiter, the finances may not be to the advantage. But substantial accumulation or benefits are probable, possibly as applied to property or other solid investment. Shun chance and safeguard against fraud or treachery.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an eventful year, with change or travel, some new arrangement in employment, and benefits through secret agreement or with corporations or secret bodies. But be careful with the funds An increase in solid accumulation through property or investment is possible, or through the favor of elderly persons or institutions. A child born on this day should be steady, practical, and likely to accumulate real possession, although subject to loss by fraud or extravagance.

AUTO CLUB PLANS SAFETY PROGRAM

Moves To Protect 6,000 Marion School Pupils from Accidents.

A comprehensive safety program, supplementing the safety patrol, has been sponsored in Marion schools this year by the Marion Auto club. Students are almost constantly reminded of the danger of carelessness and are urged to use every precaution to avoid a traffic mishap

The club is almost asking Marion motorists to use more than ordinary precaution when driving in the vicinity of school buildings When 6,000 students are dismissed from classrooms to go to their homes, the danger becomes very great, Mrs Della V. Gallagher, club secretary, points out.

The school safety program includes the monthly distribution of 600 sheets of loose leaf lessons in safety education to teachers and other school instructors. These are accompanied by suggestions for making pupils "safety conscious" in playlets and exercises

At the same time, a poster stressing the particular point of safety mentioned in the leaflet is posted in a prominent place in each school building These are attractively prepared and are in bright colors, certain to catch a student's eye

The safety patrol is functioning this year at dangerous crossings Authorized students control traffic to permit children to cross streets safely

SWAT THAT FLY!

It would take a Babe Ruth to swat this fly. It is a mechanical one produced by the department of agriculture in Washington. Two feet high, an electric motor enables it to move its wings, walk and suck air. All this ingenuity was brought into play to demonstrate how flies carry germs. The mechanical fly will be exhibited at State fairs throughout the country.

Nobody But the Simple-Minded Whistle, N. Y. Professor Says

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—Do you whistle?

If so, you simply broadcast the fact that you are a moron, according to Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, professor of philosophy at New York university, who made known his views today.

"No great or successful man ever whistles," he asserted. "Can you imagine Einstein, Edison or Mussolini tuning up to just one more chance?" or President Hoover so whistling?"

Dr. Shaw said whistling ought to be called the "defense mechanism" of the simple minded.

"Whistling to keep up one's courage," he explained, is just an artificial affirmation of bravery. A country boy walking home along a lonely road at night was foolish to do it, Dr. Gray pointed out, since it betrayed his presence to any possible enemies.

"It is only the inferior and maladjusted individual who ever seeks emotional relief in such a bird-like act as whistling," he concluded.

Ralls Case Up in Court Session Opening Today

Supreme Tribunal of State Begins Fall Term with Crawford County Murder Hearing, Set for Oct. 8.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 29—The Ohio supreme court formally reconvened for the 1931 fall term at 9 a. m. today.

The august court chambers in the annex of Ohio's capital building were opened shortly before the hour of business to admit a group of attorneys, who were to present their cases.

Upon entry of the seven judges, A. W. Buckmaster, who for more than 30 years has served as first assistant court marshal, solemnly and in a clear voice recited the call for order.

"Hear ye! Hear ye! The honorable supreme court of Ohio is now in open session pursuant to adjournment!" Thus ran the time honored cry.

The judges then proceeded to hear the cases scheduled for the day.

The high court will rule on several cases of state wide importance. These include the case of the Columbus Building & Loan association of Columbus, involving the right of a common pleas court to appoint a receiver for a building and loan association upon application of an individual.

The court will adjudicate the case of the Maysville Bridge Co. of Cincinnati, involving the right of the Kentucky highway commission to appropriate land in Aberdeen, O., for the northern approach to a bridge across the Ohio river, connecting Ohio and Kentucky.

There is the case of S. L. Andrews against state superintendent of banks, having to do with the right of a stockholder of a closed bank to set-off a deposit against his double liability.

The court has also been called upon to consider two cases involving men sentenced to die in the Ohio penitentiary's electric chair.

Blanton and Walter Ralls, Crestline Negroes, have asked the supreme court to review their conviction by the courts of Crawford county on charges of first degree murder, growing out of the fatal shooting of Crawford county sheriff George Davenport of Bucyrus. Hearing of the appeal will be held Oct. 8.

The case of Tilby Smith of Ashtabula, sentenced to die for complicity in the murder of his wife will be taken under advisement by the court following a hearing Oct. 16.

similar to that of national banks, it should regulate short selling drastically, and stick to it.

A seat on the exchange sold yesterday for $160,000, nearly $500,000 below the price of the "happy days." That is sad for the exchange, but regulation by the federal government, which is very impatient just now about attacks on values and prosperity generally, would be a good deal sadder.

MAHATMA GANDHI, who, according to Mr. "Bugs" Baer, is showing the well dressed man what he can leave off, is idealistic and practical. If England will do what he wants, Gandhi will allow manufactured cotton goods to enter India from Lancashire only. He would trade a business monopoly for freedom, which is in keeping with modern methods. Russia trading gasoline for cattle in South America, Uncle Sam trading wheat for coffee in Brazil.

THOSE INTERESTED in the cement industry should know that ingenious manipulation of New York City's new building code, now planned, would prevent the use of cement bricks and blocks, without adding anything to safety. The clay brick makers are also interested, for if they can exclude cement bricks and blocks from competition it will be easy for them to increase the price of brick and add to the cost of building.

BONDS FAVORED FOR RELIEF OF NEEDY

Tax Commissioner Points to "Unhappy" Provision in Law.

Although the proposed $28,000 issue of poor relief bonds under the Pringle-Roberts bill has not yet been approved by the state tax commission it appears to be justified, according to a United Press story from Columbus this morning.

Permission of the tax commission to issue the bonds has been asked by the city. The proposed issue is pending with several from other cities and counties.

John W. Edwards, state tax commissioner, this morning pointed out to the United Press what he considers an unhappy provision of the Pringle-Roberts bill, requiring that all relief moneys obtained from issues under this act can not be used for relief purposes after Jan. 1, 1932. This provision of the act is presenting a serious problem, the commissioner said.

The county last summer issued $43,000 in relief bonds under provisions of the bill. Since welfare demands have been unusually heavy in both the city and county, it is expected here that the proceeds from the bond issues will be entirely expended by Jan. 1, 1932. Should a balance exist in the funds at that time, it would apply to the retirement of the bonds.

OFFICER'S SHOT KILLS FUGITIVE

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 29—Death from a policeman's gun today ended the career of one of three youths who escaped from the Mansfield State reformatory Sunday night.

Frank Laut, 21, of Cleveland, was fatally wounded by Patrolman Chester Waymier of Lakewood last night when police said they found him and Frank Lewenski, 20, of Toledo, who also escaped from the Mansfield institution, attempting to steal an automobile.

Laut was dropped by Patrolman Waymier as he attempted to flee. A bullet pierced his head and he died early today.

Lewenski was recaptured as he sat in the stolen car. He had a 38-caliber automatic pistol on the seat beside him, but offered no resistance.

SOVIET INVADES U. S. GASOLINE MARKET

which would allow a fair profit.

The disclosure of the shipment from Montreal to Detroit and the arrival of the original consignment from the Soviet was made here by Colonel Walter C. Cole of the Union league of Michigan.

Charles E. Austin, president of the Sunny Service Oil Co., to which the shipment is consigned, said it was his knowledge that oil shipments to this country from outside countries were not infrequent. He said he believed this to be the first direct shipment to Detroit from the Soviet.

The normal monthly capacity of the Detroit area is placed at 30,000,000 gallons of gasoline. Austin would not predict the possible outcome of dumping an additional 3,000,000 gallons into this field nor whether the gasoline is to be sold in the Detroit district.

Expects Extra Hardship

"As I view it," Colonel Cole told the United Press, "adding this additional gasoline to a market now crowded is going to create an even greater hardship on the oil industry than now exists.

"Unless there has been violation of the anti-dumping act, and I do not know whether this is true or not, there can be nothing done about this importation of oil save wait and watch developments."

Colonel Cole said he believed it would prove equally disastrous to open production of the American field with a view to filling the market with so much oil that foreign shipments could not compete. The price reduction, he said, would bring the return below the cost of production in all probability.

CHINA, JAPAN REPLY TO NOTES FROM U. S.

Former Demand Redress for Invasion; Latter Willing To End Trouble.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—The assurance of Japan that it would avoid further hostilities in Manchuria and China's demands for "full redress" from its island neighbor for the Manchurian invasion today lay before the American government.

The replies of both far eastern governments to identical notes sent them by Secretary Stimson requesting an end of fighting were made public yesterday—Japan's by the state department and China's by its legation.

The Chinese note dated September 27, charged the Japanese air was committing "acts of war." It asserted the Japanese had invaded Chinese territory, occupying and in certain cases ransacking Chinese towns, and murdering Chinese public officers and citizens. Withdrawal of the Japanese troops was demanded.

Expressing confidence that the "tension" in Manchuria might be adjusted by frank and unimpassioned discussions between the two nations involved, the Japanese note said:

"In common with the hope expressed by the American government, Japan has already caused the Japanese military forces in Manchuria to refrain from any further acts of hostility, unless their own safety, as well as the security of the south Manchuria railway and of Japanese lives nd property within that railway zone is jeopardized by the aggression of Chinese troops or armed bands.

America's part in seeking settlement of the dispute was welcomed by both governments. Japan expressed appreciation of the "friendly concern in the fairness of views" of the United States. China said it was her conviction that the move had been prompted by the desire to preserve the sanctity of the Kellogg peace pact to which both of the far eastern nations are signatory.

FLIERS PREPARE FOR LONG PACIFIC TRY

Herndon, Pangborn Poised for Hop from Japan: Destination Uncertain.

By The Associated Press

SAMUSHIRO, Japan, Sept. 29—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., American aviators, flew here from Tachikawa airdrome near Tokyo, today and set about preparing their big monoplane for a non-stop flight to the United States.

Weather permitting, they plan to leave at dawn tomorrow. Their exact destination was indefinite.

They will be ineligible for the $25,000 prize offer of Seattle business men for a non-stop flight from Tokyo to the Puget sound city because of their decision to start from Samushiro, 375 miles from the capital. They said they might land at Wenatchee, Wash., where Pangborn's mother and brother, Percy, reside; or Boise, Ida., or Salt Lake City, Utah.

By continuing non-stop to Salt Lake city they would break the distance record of nearly 6,000 miles set by Russel Boardman and John Polando, who flew from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, last July.

The aerial investigators planned a stop at Wuhu, 75 miles southwest of Nanking, to inspect relief work in progress there.

Hankow is about 300 miles from Nanking as the crow flies, but it was believed the Lindberghs would follow the genral course of the Yangtse River after leaving Wuhu, lengthening their journey somewhat.

Not Worth Reviving.

The best plan in the world won't work unless you work it.

The recent American Legion convention passed a resolution urging President Hoover to revive the council of national defense for service in the present depression. The White House will take no action on the resolution, it announces firmly. Reasons are not hard to find.

The council of national defense was created in 1916 to coordinate industries and resources for the "national security and welfare." It was charged with "the creation of relations which will render possible in time of need the immediate concentration and utilization of the resources of the nation." It could not be admitted openly at the time that the council was created to prepare the United States for war, but that was the purpose. Though the council still has a paper existence it has held no meeting since its work ended in 1921.

There was a general feeling during the war that the council was not effective. Its functions were weaned away from it under various guises, and it is significant that one of its subdivisions, which later became an independent body, was the war industries board, acknowledged as the most efficient means of coordinating industry ever conceived in the United States. It was, however, and is so viewed by its former chairman, Bernard M. Baruch, as too powerful an agency to be maintained in peace time.

The council of national defense, because it is obsolescent and because it failed to do the things expected of it even when backed by the sanction of a nation dedicated to broad policy of national defense, will not be revived at this time. Even were it active and recommended by a record of success in its original incarnation, it is doubtful if a federal administration which has been criticized harshly because of its willingness to trust to commissions would care to take another chance on the discredited magic powers of the council to solve national problems.

There is a report current that the administration's faith in the commission method of solving problems is gone. As long ago as last June President Hoover criticized "economic planning" and expressed his faith in the result of "giving the American people a chance." The curt dismissal of the resolution to revive the council of national defense is a further reflection of this attitude which places more confidence in action than in investigations and schemes.

United States deputy marshals, a day or two ago, arrested a member of the crew of a tanker in Boston, charging him with violation of the prohibition law. Well, a member of a tanker crew might be expected to tank a little occasionally.

Italy's Tariff Boost.

Italy's fifteen per cent. increase on imports should tell long-range critics of the American tariff something. For instance, they might use it to reach the conclusion that there is a lot of unmapped territory between their theory of tariff and the facts of that instrument as statesmen see them.

Italy is boosting its tariff to meet a deficit in the state budget. Great Britain, which also is leaning sweetly toward the protection a tariff would afford, is actuated by the same motive. The tariff is a tangible instrument in such cases, not a shadowy theory that ought to do this and ought not to do that.

It is a noteworthy fact that in the mass of vituperation against the Hawley-Smoot tariff there is no mention of what could have been substituted for it satisfactorily under the circumstances. It happens that the tariff, badly drawn and inequitable as President Hoover, himself, admits it is, was inevitable. Objecting to it is as unreasonable as crying about wage cuts after they have been made.

It is not popular to defend the tariff. The negotiationists have been having a holiday with it, picking it to pieces but never advancing an idea as to what would have been, or would be, any better. Pinned down to facts, most of them can get no further than their own conviction that it should be condemned, they know not why.

Italy's move, of course, will complicate the international tariff situation. It will serve to perpetuate certain international financial troubles. It will penalize the United States and Great Britain, both of which sell quantities of goods to Italy. But, at the same time, it will bring needed revenue into Italy's treasury, which is, always has been and always will be the motive of tariff action.

Why Fly Around the World?

Post's and Gatty's turn around the world in the dependable airplane "Winnie Mae" is still recent enough to be remembered. There are even some people for whom extraordinary deeds are such excitement that they can still thrill to the memory of the flight.

Post and Gatty, their airplane, their wives and their backer have dropped back into obscurity, however, so far as national attention is concerned. Here and there, at local airports, the arrival of the 'Winnie Mae" causes a flutter, but glory won quickly is lost quickly. Colonel Lindbergh may be the exception that proves the rule.

Why fly around the world? Donald Rose, writing in the North American Review, gives an answer, principally remarkable for its bitterness. Mr. Rose uses Post and Gatty as straw men to tilt at with far more vigor than reason. Without minding words, he concludes that an event which knocked the civilized world into a state of uncivilized hysteria is still lacking a civilized explanation."

His own conviction thus satisfactorily established, Mr. Rose charges and countercharges furiously at the Post-Gatty flight to drive home the point that it did absolutely no good. And when his breath is gone his lance broken and all future round-the-world flights damned in advance, Mr. Rose concludes just what the reader knew he would conclude all along. "The mystery remains, just as it still is undetermined why a little dog will chase his tail ten minutes and then sit down with an air of worthy triumph."

It is easy, even pleasant, to agree that Post and Gatty contributed nothing to aviation. They did not make it easier for the next flight to succeed, they learned nothing new, they proved nothing about airplanes. Their flight was nothing more than a stunt, and it is pleasant to agree that aviation needs fewer stunts and more of the safe flying that encourages cash patrons. In other words, a flight around the world in nine days, or eight days, or seven days, differs from walking around the world backwards only in the degree of danger involved. Both are useless.

At the same time, they are harmless, and that is why Mr. Rose's bitter attack on the Post-Gatty flight appears suspiciously pointless like kicking a discarded hat to pieces. Post and Gatty weren't trying to prove anything. Lacking nothing better to do they enlisted the aid of a financier and flew around the world. Their only purpose was to make themselves famous, and perhaps make a little money. They didn't stay famous long and they didn't make much money—but they didn't do any harm trying, and they livened things up a bit. Why drag them into the spotlight and beat them up for that?

The Navesink light in New York harbor was the most powerful in the country in 1841, the date of its installation, and it again has that distinction, alterations having been made which have given it a beam of 9,000,000 candlepower, whereas most light houses have but from 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 candlepower. Maybe the government is seeking more light on Tammany sordidness.

Hobbies.

The admirers of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, and they are many, are openly surprised at her persistence in making a career for herself as an artist. It is their common opinion that being a tennis champion and a wife should be enough, without this other exacting activity.

Mrs. Moody's pencil sketches have attracted considerable favorable attention. She has risen above the doubtful state of the 'trying' artists and has marketed some of her work on its intrinsic merit. Now she is turning to an extremely difficult medium, etching, in which to work.

Her ambition deserves commendation for the example it offers. When a sufficient number of people show a familiar willingness to develop their talents for the pleasure they obtain the United States will have taken a step to remove its label of 'materialistic nation.'

A group of business men in Cleveland, organized to promote the interest of its various members in art, has accomplished remarkable results. Like Mrs. Moody, its members have schooled themselves in the technique of an avocation to a high point of perfection. They were successful business men, and they have demonstrated that they can also be good artists.

There are thousands no more talented who could be riding to personal happiness on a hobby, if they dared to mount.

Editorial Opinion.

ALTAR AND HEARTH.

The observation by the Rev. Roy Ewing Vale that love alone can save marriage as the foundation of our family system is worth noting. All sorts of laws and conventions exist to buttress the institution of matrimony against certain centrifugal forces in human nature. They are impotent unless they are vitalized by love.

The word love is one of the most abused in our language. We continually confuse it with infatuation. Although true love may begin with infatuation it never ends with it. The fundamental difference between infatuation and love is that the former is purely selfish while the latter is self sacrificing, and marriage calls for much self sacrifice. The man who so "loves" a woman that he is willing to ruin her life in order to obtain or retain her in reality loves only himself. That sort of love doesn't help marriage a bit.

What the Rev. Mr. Vale evolved was the love which, starting in physical and mental attraction endures because the lovers love many things together. As he put it:

When a man and woman marry each desiring to serve and care for the other the likelihood is that they will cultivate together their love of literature, music, service to others, of developing a beautiful home life, and effect permanence in their union."

The majority of unsuccessful marriages are due to young people rushing into a state of the real nature of which they are blissfully ignorant. They are swept off their balance by physical attraction. They discover too late that "the lovely toy, so fiercely sought, hath lost its charm by being caught." The absence of common interests hastens the day of disillusionment. Conventions and laws can hold them together in unhappy wedlock—and that is all they can do. Where there is marriage without love, as Benjamin Franklin remarked, there is likely to be love without marriage. The remedy seems to lie in bringing up boys and girls with a fuller understanding of what is expected of them when they link their lives together.—Detroit Free Press.

Deaths of Three Noted Ohio Men.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Three noted Ohio men died within the space of six weeks in the early days of 1904. All three deaths occurred in connection with the inauguration of Myron T. Herrick as governor. Colonel Herrick having been elected in November, 1903. Before the Herrick election we chose our governors in the odd numbered years instead of the even, as now.

Ex-Governor Charles Foster left his home several days before the inauguration in order to visit his old friend, General J. Warren Keifer, at his home in Springfield, on the way. He spent several days at the Keifer home and there fell ill and died very suddenly.

Former Governor Asa S. Bushnell, of Springfield, was among the distinguished guests at the inaugural ceremonies. He had resumed his business interests after retiring from the executive office, and though over sixty years of age, seemed to be strong. His white hair, ruddy face and erect bearing made him a conspicuous figure among the official party. He seemed to be in perfect health.

The ceremony over he returned to his hotel, and after dinner took a carriage to the railway station to return to Springfield. He was alone. When the driver opened the carriage door at the station for the governor to alight he found his fare unconscious. He had been stricken with apoplexy on the way to the station. He lingered that night in a local hospital, but died early the next day without having recovered consciousness.

Governor Herrick had no closer friend, socially and politically, than Marcus A. Hanna, then one of the United States senators from Ohio. The two men had come to high preferment through the same party together. He came from Washington to see Governor Herrick inaugurated. A cold aggravated, it is believed by exposure at the inauguration, developed into pneumonia and on February 15 he died at the Arlington hotel in Washington.

War on Tuberculosis.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Since 1900, the death rate from tuberculosis has been cut in half. This is a remarkable achievement but we must not stop our efforts.

Tuberculosis is a disease which, if recognized early and proper treatment is given, is curable. Of course there are some cases in which the future is not quite so bright. But in the majority of cases, much can be done by way of cure when the attack is treated in its very early stages.

Adequate care for these individuals often rests upon the state. Most of the large cities have adequate facilities. But smaller communities often fall behind in their duty to provide institutions for the care of tubercular persons. It is not wholly the fault of the public that tuberculosis thrives. It must not be overlooked that all too many persons fail to give their bodies proper attention. As a result of this negligence, tuberculosis may make its attack. Then perhaps the disease is not recognized until it is advanced so far that cure is impossible.

If all persons would visit their doctors at least twice a year, many a disease, like tuberculosis, would be disposed of at once. Whether they have any complaints or not, everybody should have these periodical examinations. If they did this there would be a tremendous number of cases of tuberculosis recognized in the stage when the disease is curable. With the application of immediate care and medical attention, it would be but a short time when the road to recovery would be filled with happy people.

It is a pity that many an individual who has tuberculosis and knows it, hesitates to seek relief. This is because he fears being sent away from home and becoming a social outcast.

Such an attitude is unwise and unnecessary. Institutions devoted to the care of tubercular patients are usually located in the most ideal surroundings. Hardly a community fails to offer suitable places for the treatment. The time spent in these establishments is not unpleasant.

Persons without the necessary funds to go to a private sanitarium, find that public sanitariums are readily located. No great hardship is imposed upon those seeking relief.

Nothing is more selfish than for an individual who has tuberculosis to continue in his daily work. He has daily contacts with other individuals, contacts which may cause others to contract the disease.

It is only by the earnest cooperation of all that the prevalence of this disease can be further reduced. The campaigns against tuberculosis deserve generous support.

Bessel, Astronomical Leader.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the great figures, who "showed the world" how to do an important thing not known before, was Friedrich William Bessel. From the standpoint of the mathematician, he made an elaborate study of a certain sort of functions or mathematical expressions not known before, to which was given the name of Bessel's functions. In astronomy he taught astronomers how to handle a telescope, to get the most out of it, and to eliminate, so far as possible, the personal equation of the observer. There was not a department of the science of astronomy, dealt with by him, which he did not adorn or improve.

Friedrich Wilhelm Bessel was born at Minden, in Westphalia on July 22, 1784. He was intended by his father for a commercial career, but after working for a time in a mercantile house, he found himself irresistibly drawn toward mathematics and astronomy, which had appealed to him ever since his early youth.

Although connected with no university or astronomical observatory, Bessel in his twentieth year made some elaborate calculations from the observations of Harriott and Torporly two centuries earlier. These calculations determined the position of a comet afterward to be famous as Halley's comet, because Halley demonstrated its periodical return. Young Bessel communicated his result to the famous astronomer, Olber, who was so favorably impressed that he recommended Bessel as assistant to Schroeter at Lilienthal.

On taking up this work, Bessel made elaborate studies of the sixth satellite of Saturn, which he published in several large memoirs. His researches concerning the comet of 1807 brought him the Lalande prize of the Institute of Paris.

In 1810, he was appointed director of the new observatory at Koenigsberg, then being established by the king of Prussia. From 1813 when the observatory was completed and observations began, until his death in 1846, Bessel carried on research of the highest possible value in astronomy. In the course of time, honors of all sorts were showered upon him for his notable scientific work. Two of his contributions to science are classic works, the "Foundations of Astronomy," and his work, with the Latin title 'Tabulae Regiomontanae.'

His most spectacular single achievement was the devising of a technic for finding and the actual finding by this technic of the distance from earth to the star, 61 Cygni which is about 500,000 times as far from us as the sun. Another important service was the fixation of the Prussian standard of length, which required two years. Bessel an honored figure in the world of science died at the age of sixty-two.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

OPPOSES ONE-MILL PROPOSAL.

Editor Star—In a number of recent issues of the Star I have read of this organization or that group indorsing the one-mill levy for relief of the unemployed the coming winter. It is evident that something must be done to raise funds for this purpose, but the one-mill levy seems to me to be an unfair method. Tax levies of this nature are paid only by owners of property. In this case, it would fall on the real estate owners whose burden is already too heavy. It seems to me a much more equitable way of raising this relief fund would be through a salary or income levy, one which all employed persons could share, and not expect only taxable property owners to bear the whole load. In view of this, I offer the following suggestions for raising the relief fund.

Assess every employed person—which would include business and professional men and women as well as clerks, salespeople and wage-earners of all kinds—whose income or salary or wages is two dollars a day or more a certain per cent. of such income, salary or wages over a given period. This might be called an occupational tax, which has been held constitutional, or an employment tax.

Under this plan, a person receiving two dollars a day on the basis of one-half cent a day would pay six cents a week. Making the time period three months, this person would pay seventy-eight cents all told—six cents a week for thirteen weeks.

A person receiving three dollars a day would be assessed three cents a day, eighteen cents a week, $2.34 for thirteen weeks.

A person receiving four dollars a day would be assessed four cents a day, twenty-four cents a week, $3.12 for thirteen weeks.

The person with an income of five dollars a day would be asked to pay five cents a day, thirty cents a week for thirteen weeks, or $3.90.

The six-dollar-a-day man would be taxed thirty-six cents a week or $4.68 total.

The seven-dollar-a-day man would be asked seven cents a day, or forty-two cents a week for thirteen weeks, a total of $5.46.

The eight-dollar-a-day man would be asked to pay $6.24 for thirteen weeks the nine-dollar-a-day man $7.02 and the $10-a-day man $7.80 for the thirteen weeks.

The same principle would prevail for those receiving larger salaries or incomes.

It might not be necessary, under this plan, to ask payments for three months—for on that basis two months might be sufficient.

On the basis of 10,000 persons receiving incomes of two to $10 a day, estimating 500 at the two-dollar rate, 3,500 at the three-dollar rate, 2,500 at the four-dollar rate, 1,500 at the five-dollar rate 1,000 at the six-dollar rate, 500 at the seven-dollar rate, 300 at the eight-dollar rate, 150 at the nine-dollar rate, and fifty at the $10 rate, the total assessments would be $32,955. There are probably some whose income exceeds the $10 rate and more than estimated who receive from five dollars to $10, so this total should equal or exceed the estimated $35,000 income from the proposed levy.

Persons unemployed could be given work of making collections, which would temporarily decrease the unemployed list.

The plan also has the advantage of bringing in the money more quickly. Under the tax levy plan money would not be available until the December tax collections were made.

It will be noted also, that in no case would the assessment exceed one days income.

Why should a property owner whose income may be less than five dollars a day be taxed for poor relief and a person whose salary or income is five dollars a day—more or less—but who owns no property to be taxed, go free of this unemployment relief burden?

I have been a tax-payer in Marion twelve years. If the levy carries I will pay the one-mill assessment. But why should another citizen who owns no taxable property, but whose income may equal, exceed, or even be less than mine, escape his proportionate share of the unemployment relief contribution?

I am opposed to the one-mill levy. I favor the employment assessment plan.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Atlantic City, Sept. 29—This coast resort has become a sort of Broadway peninsula. One may whisk through the Holland tunnel—like a greased pig through a Child's—and on a straight-away road arrive from Times square in a little more than three hours.

It has been the especial playground of theatrical folk, whose engagements kept them in New York this season. They leave after the Saturday night performance and return late Monday. Consequently the hotels are well filled over the week-end.

But generally speaking, Atlantic City, like pleasure haunts the world over, has had usual slim pickings. Broadway was represented on the boardwalk today by such figures as George S. Kaufman, Irving Ceasar, George M. Cohan, Joe Frisco and Sam Harris. The Ritz is their open forum.

The most astonishing figure in a promenade along the fantastic hotel crags was a corn black lady in decollette bathing suit with a snow white fur flung like a serape across her shoulder. On a leash she had a Persian cat whose fluffy coat was dyed a light pink.

The board walk is a several-mile narrowly planked strip of free window display. On one side its defiant hotels, pert shops, catch-penny amusement trivia and on the other the oyster white beach, ocean and projecting piers. The community, like the unceasing tide, lurches forward and back in rolling chairs.

Chairs are a dollar an hour and a fraction thereof thereafter. Its pushers form a profession distinctly apart from any other I know. Walking indeterminable miles daily in the stabbing sun, shoving their human loads, they are reminiful of drudges of the water mills in ancient serfdom.

Many are colored, but the majority are white, some with one arm, crippled feet and otherwise malformed. Yet now and then in the flotsam is one whose niceties of speech and manner proclaim the gentleman stained by the pathos of life. As a chair pusher with head bowed he may hide from the world.

For instance, my pusher seemed utterly miscast for his role. He had more the appearance of one of those wandering scholars with knapsacks so frequently seen along the Rhine or in the German forests. Drawing up momentarily for a rest and a view of the ocean front, he pulled out a tattered volume. It was printed in French. Questioning developed he was a private language tutor shunted, I hope only temporarily, to this depressing obscurity.

Visitors to Atlantic City are about the only folk to wear clothes. The natives, especially women and children, go through the season in bathing togs. Shortly before sundown when the sea is veined with Lucifer entire families drift to the beach for their swim. Later housewives may be seen in the kitchen in swimming attire cooking the evening meal. Husbands and children, so dressed, wait on front porches for the call to dinner.

The beach is radiantly grained with surprising handiwork of the sand artist. In bas relief are sculptured pictures of Lincoln, lions, tigers, Hoover, a nobly breasted Venus Gibson girls and forest scenes. Some are colored in fetching tints. The artist depends on pitched coins of passers-by for his livelihood.

Sunburn lotions cost Atlantic City hotels staggering sums in ruined linens and towels. The stains can not be removed and bathrooms and bedrooms are hung with warnings in red that patrons must pay for such damage—costs range from three dollars a bed-sheet to a dollar for a towel.

A beach fad for the seasonal flapper is a brown frock and floppy linen hat to match the autumnal shade of her tanned skin. One such monochrome, suggesting the carved, serene beauty of the Indian, with hair the light puffed taffy of Lyda Roberti's turns heads everywhere.

Atlantic City is a Mecca for swamis and other Orientals seers. One today, suggesting a charcoal edition of Ben Ali Haggin prophesied "You are about to receive an unexpected business offer of great magnitude." And between leaping to the ring of the telephone and haunting the hotel telegraph office I'm fit to be tied.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

One of the most delightful experiences the traveler to Paris enjoys is visiting the famous left bank of the Seine where stand the innumerable little book and curio stalls that have evoked comment for decades.

Anatole France—whose elegant literary style was perhaps unequaled in modern French letters—never tired of rummaging for bargains in the stalls and in the nearby shops.

One is bound to come across almost anything in these queer little stalls. And the men and women who guard the treasures and junk on display are as quaint an assortment of humans as you will find anywhere.

Books you will find there, books bound in leather and on paper, books in English, Hebrew and Arabic. Scimitars—a little rusty perhaps—but scimitars you can imagine once flashed in the hand of some forgotten Moorish conqueror. Perfume bottles, curious marbles, quill pens, fancy head-dresses, watches that are wound by keys, statuettes, crucifixes—everything one can imagine. In these stalls you can buy an Italian violin or a pair of Russian earrings.

You have to be a shrewd trader, however, or you will find yourself carting home trifles that you could have bought in the second hand store in your town for a fraction of what you paid on the left bank.

The stall-owners generally sit on little canvas stools. There are bearded men, comely young women, striplings, old crones. Some of them know very little English but every one of them can always answer the question "How much?" with surprising promptness.

The stalls seem to stretch out mile after mile along the stone embankment. Below swings by the brown river that has rolled tranquilly by while kings were being beheaded and a Napoleon was thrilling the world.

It is really something to remember—your shopping trip to the left bank stalls. Something that you will recall long after you forget how much you paid for the marvelous gloves and matchless jewels that you bought in the fashionable shops along the Rue de Rivoli—on the right bank.

Prodigy Building Telescope of New and Powerful Type

By International News Service.

DENVER Colo — A youthful giant who toiled with his great hands over minute lenses accurate to one-millionth of an inch is about to fulfill an ambition born of 12 years of study and work

Carroll M Spencer 23 mental and physical prodigy is constructing a telescope which according to mathematical calculations will have twice the power of an ordinary instrument because of its specially - designed vibrationless tube. It is declared far lighter but nearly six times stronger than the type now in use

Behind the building of the new telescope is the story of a remarkable boyhood Spencer, who now stands six feet seven inches tall and weighs 200 pounds, has had few interests since his tenth year outside of mathematics and the construction of lenses

Passed Up Recreation

While his schoolmates played football and attended to many social activities Spencer has worked hour after hour in his dingy laboratory in a vacant garage working out mathematical formulas and putting his knowledge into practical use by making lenses for various technical instruments.

Spencer graduated from North Denver high school Following his graduation he took advanced courses in mathematics gleaning all he could from extension courses in Denver university and the University of Colorado He learned something of astronomy from the late Herbert A Howe former dean of the University of Denver and internationally famous astronomer who befriended him

In his studies Spencer found it necessary to go to German authorities for information Unable to read the language he had the necessary parts of the German books translated for him

Would Stop Vibration

As a result of his years of extensive study Spencer hit upon a plan of making a telescope which would eliminate the vibrations which although barely perceptible, play havoc with present day telescopes magnifying power Spencer's instrument a reflecting type of telescope, is mounted on an open tube of aluminum alloy which he has perfected to a point where it is virtually unaffected by vibration

If the youthful inventor's instrument fulfills its predictions, he will reap a fortune and the science of astronomy will be immeasurably benefitted He expects to manufacture the instrument he has perfected on a much larger scale as soon as he has received patents for the invention

SAN FRANCISCO—With 40 per cent more aliens leaving San Francisco than arriving figures at Angel Island immigraton headquarters up to September 1 showed a complete reversal of the immigration tide this year

Departing foreigners totaled 6-620 up to September 1 whereas entries numbered only 4 732 according to J R Schaduel Angel Island statistician

Normally incoming aliens exceed those leaving the country through this port by 100 to 300 Schaduel said Now each month shows just the opposite balance

San Francisco however showed not quite so heavy an exodus as for the United States as a whole In July seven aliens left the United States for every three entering Washington figures disclosed but in San Francisco the ratio was six to four

Although deportation is the highest in the nation's history departures from here were mostly voluntary

Orientals make up a majority of the aliens checked in and out by the local office of the immigration service

Marion County Women Prepare for Club Season

Six hundred and fifty women of the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs are preparing for the opening of the 1931-32 season of study, early in October.

Several of the clubs in the federation are opening Oct. 1, but the majority will have their first meetings sometime during the first or second week of the month.

Coming with the opening of the federated work here will be the central district convention Oct. 13-16, at which the Marion federation will be hostesses.

Two New Clubs

Twenty-three senior clubs enroll the 650 women. Last year the Junior All Arts club of Prospect was organized, the first junior group in the county. The Art club of Marion also became affiliated with the federation last year, under the guidance of Mrs. Walter E. Hane.

Mrs. H. K. Mouser and her board of officers will continue to guide the activities of the Marion county group this year. Recently Mrs. Mouser announced confidentially, several innovations in club life which she believes will add greatly to the pleasure the women receive from their membership in the federation. Her plans will be made public upon their completion.

Program chairmen of each of the 23 clubs have kept in mind the Club Woman's Creed in arranging their programs for the coming season. The theater is beginning to take its place in programs as evinced by the season's year-books. The study of famous women, history, literature, art, drama, poetry, Ohio and its history and interesting data, and other subjects of interest to the individual clubs, will occupy the meetings through the winter.

To Have Separate Course

"The Club Woman's Creed," which is adopted by every federated club, follows:

"Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

"Let us be done with fault-finding and love of self-seeking.

"May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.

"Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.

"Let us take time for all things; make us grow calm, serene and gentle.

"Grant that we may realize that it is the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are one.

"And may we strive to touch and to know the great common woman's heart of us all; and, O Lord, let us not forget to be kind."

Programs of several of the clubs have not been returned from the printers, and will not be distributed before the opening club meetings. Federated clubs whose programs are not given below follow: Altrurian, Business Women, Council of Jewish Women, Research, Three Arts and Woman's Century club.

SAM

FREEMAN LINCOLN

(Copyright, Freeman Lincoln)

Sam said pleadingly: "Aren't you going to let me explain at all, Freddy? Aren't you going to let me try to justify myself?"

"What's the use? You want to explain to me what happened that night when you and I almost took the 6 o'clock train for New York. You want to tell me why you thought what you thought, and why you did what you did. You want to tell me what you've been thinking, and doing, and feeling ever since. Am I right, Sam?"

"Yes, Freddy. Don't you think you might be kind enough to listen?"

"I doubt if my listening would be a kindness. It would just involve us in a hopeless tangle of explanations and reproaches. It wouldn't do any good." He shook his head. "It isn't, you know, as though you had to justify yourself to me. It isn't that I'm trying to be rude, either. It's just that I'm trying to avoid a painful narration of causes when causes aren't important. Causes aren't important to me, Sam. Only facts are important."

"I see," she said. "There's no possible way, Freddy, in which I can persuade you to let me have my say?"

He frowned. "There might be one way, but you wouldn't take advantage of it."

"Wouldn't I? You might at least give me the chance."

"All right, I will." He leaned forward and looked her in the eyes. "You can have your say, Sam, but only if you can tell me that I'm wrong in two conclusions that I've drawn today. If you can 'yes' to two simple questions that, I'll ask you, you can talk your head off. Otherwise talk is foolish and a waste of time. Shall I ask the questions?"

Sam felt a clutch of fear at her heart but she managed to nod. "Go ahead and ask them."

"All right, I will. Here's the first one." He spoke briskly, almost casually. "Can you honestly tell me, Sam, that you're not in love with Peak Abbott?"

Sam said nothing. She merely stared.

"That's the first question. Here's the second." He nodded impersonally. "Can you tell me, with equal honesty that you are in love with me?"

Sam continued to stare, her eyes widening. Freddy's face was a white blur. There was a lump in her throat. She tried to think, but her brain seemed paralyzed. She tried to speak, but the words would not come. A power stronger than herself held her speechless.

After an interval Freddy smiled and leaned back in his chair. "You see?" he inquired gently. "Do you see now, Sam, why I said that talk was useless, and why I tried to avoid it? I wasn't blaming you for what has happened. It isn't your fault. It just happened that's all. I knew that no amount of talk could change it."

There was suddenly a stranger across the table from Sam. He had the face and the figure of someone named Freddy Munson—but he was a stranger, nevertheless. He was looking at his wrist watch and shaking his head. "Darn it all," the stranger was saying ruefully, "I might have known! I've missed my train. Now I'll have to wait an hour for another."

At 20 minutes to 5 that same afternoon Sam was walking up and down a deserted platform at the railway station. She was waiting for the train from New York on which Peak Abbott was returning from his trip to see Fourth. A telegram giving the hour of Peak's arrival had been waiting when she came back to the stable after her luncheon with Freddy Munson.

Already that luncheon seemed a dim, unreal memory. It might have taken place years ago. Was it possible that Freddy had come to town that very morning; that she had seen him; that he had gone away again?

Peak's telegram had said something about everything being all right. She supposed that meant that he had seen Fourth, and that he had found out where Martha was.

It really mattered that she see Peak at once and tell him about Freddy Munson. Peak would be surprised when he heard. He might well be angry and tell her that he was through with her forever. She would not blame him if he did.

There was a long whistle behind her, and Sam turned to see the New York train slide around a gentle curve and come to a stop beside the raised platform. Sam caught a glimpse of Peak in the distance. She called his name and ran toward him, waving her hand.

Peak was surprised to see her. He was also tremendously pleased, although he tried not to show it. "You shouldn't have bothered with me," he said.

"I wanted to come." They walked down the stairs to the street. "I wanted to talk to you."

"Naturally." Peak thought that she wanted to talk to him about Martha.

They found Sam's car and Peak took the wheel. "Well, young lady," he said cheerfully, "you aren't such a bad detective."

"Oh. You mean about Martha." Sam stirred impatiently. "So Fourth knew all about it did he? I thought he would. Have you told Nelson?"

"I sent him a wire saying I had good news, and to meet me at my house at 5:15. Do you mind if we stop there first?"

"Of course not. Where is Martha?"

"She's all right." Peak laughed. As a matter of fact, she's living in comparative luxury in a small hotel about 30 miles out in the country. Your stepfather is doing her fairly proud."

"When is she coming home?"

"I imagine the best plan will be to send Sonny up there on a surprise visit. Perhaps he can bring her home tonight."

"Good." Sam nodded. "And that will be the end of that. Now we don't have to talk about it any more. I want to hear all about it, but I'd rather hear later, if you don't mind. Just now I'd like to talk about something else."

"Oh." Once more Peak glanced at her curiously. "All right. What's on your mind?"

Sam was silent for a moment. Then she said quietly "I had luncheon with Freddy Munson today, Peak."

"Oh." The monosyllable was the only one that Peak had heard. It seemed to escape his lips involuntarily. After that he stared straight out at the road and stepped on the accelerator in his driving.

Sam waited for a while for a comment that did not come. Then she resumed the account, speaking rapidly and making sure that she left out nothing that might be important. [illegible]

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

WHEN me and Jubilee woke up this morning I had the cover over us, so it must have been coolish in the night. I got him by the ears and shook his head and grinned at him, with our faces right close together so he could see my grin, because it was still kinda darkish, and I said to him, "Well, old fella, what are you going to do today whilst I am in school? If it's anything you oughtn't do don't tell me." And he didn't tell me, so he was probably going to chase cats, and maybe bark at automobiles, which I don't like for him to do, because sometimes he runs too fast or a car don't run fast enough, so he catches it and then he is so sorry anyone can hear him for a mile; and when he runs at automobiles he is liable to get run over, and then I would never get another dog like him.

When I had let him down and put on my short britches and went down and done the milking and turned the cows out and we were coming home from the pasture and were on the paved street an auto was coming like someone was after it, and Jubilee ran at it and began barking. He was going as fast as he could, and he would of been all right but it was a mean man driving the auto and he turned it toardst Jubilee right quick and tried to run over him. Jubilee was so suprised and scairt that he tried to stop and turn around but he was going so fast he couldn't and he fell and rolled over and over right in front of the auto and it went over him and scairt me so bad that I hollered louder than Jubilee did, but none of the wheels hit him, and the next I knew the auto had went past and Jubilee and the rest of us were standing watching it go out of sight. I wished my grandfather had been there to holler at the man and tell him what I thought of him, for my grandmother is the only person I know that could have told what I thought. I bet if my father knew what I thought he would have raised me for it.

Mitch worked, on his dumpcart yesterday, but he was in bed the day, and his wife was [illegible] talking to the chickens, and [illegible] got wetted up before the wheat ceased and quitted for dumping its drunk and quitted about 4:30, so I said but how much [illegible] of it and rubbering and [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and
